We have found the acme of feminine modesty. Laura says: "Ugh Rather than hug the sweetest lad in christendom, I would sooner kiss the north side of a stone fence " We shall keep away from the south side if that's the case.

It is always pitable to see an old man who stands with one foot in the grave freezing to a nickel like a woolen coat to a burdock. On general principles the less use a man has for the nickels the more he hangs on to them. So it is with life. The less real value existence has for a man, the more he loves it

A creditor who had given his debtor a week to contrive some plan to meet his obligations called at the expiration of the period and politely asked. "Have you thought over that matter yet?" "Not exactly," responded the debtor with a trou-bled look. "You see I wanted to think over it a good deal, but the very day you left my doctor told me I musn't do any brain work."

Olive Logan says that our manble-top tables with rickety legs are a national curse, as slavery was. Let us hope it will not cest our government as much in freasure and blood to abolish the marble-top table as it did to wipe out slavery. It is presumed that the political party that inserts in its next platform a table must go, will not only secure Olive's services on the stump, but

Mrs. Burnett's new story, "A l'air Barbarian," contains the tollowing conversation between certain English school-girls, upon whom the sight of an American girl has dawned for the first time "I have not the slightest doubt," said Miss she lives in a wampum." "What is a wampum?" asked one of the admiring audience. "A tent," replied Miss Phipps, with some impatience; "I should think any goose would know that. It is a kind of tent hung with scalps, and-andmoccasins, and -lariats and things of that sort."

ed in the completion of a bellot box abiob he claims is proof against all at tempts at illegal voting, counting, or tabulating, and, in its workings, defice any stuffing, repeating, or unlawful per constitut at elections. The constitut parts of the invention are a long ! shaped hook, on which the bellots are strong on being voted, and an enumerating apparatus which strikes a gong and turns up a new number every time s ballot is put on the hook. One end of this hook projects through the ballot side, on which the ballot is placed. Koch hallet, when voted, is placed on the prejecting point of the kook, and severed by a metallic washer. By pull ing open the slide the ballot and washer fall into the box, where they remain strung on the hook, and the buildt can not be removed except by somsiderable force, and, even should it be removed. the mesher, enumerator and sheeked names remain as tell tales, and at once indicate that fraud has been committed. The same movement of the slide that drops the ballot in the box also rings the hell, and names a change of numhere on the dist of the enumerator. By an ingeniuse device the slide is so at ranged that in voting there is no oper ture in the box, and, concequently, no one of the hooks is full of ballots a wire erun through the holes at such end

Political parties have existed in every State of which we have any history, and they are necessary to the well-being of government. In matters of party representation and organization, a nominating convention and caucus are as necessary adjuncts to success as i individual membership upon which the party is founded. As a Republican and party nominee I was entitled to the support of every member of the General Assembly who had been nominated and elected as a Republican, unless unfitted for office by some moral, political or personal defect. I am unaware of any such objections, nor has any to my knowledge been suggested, but, unfor tunately for my aspirations, a sufficient number of Republicans have refused either to take part in making a nomination or to support the nomince of the majority. Many, perhaps all, gentle-men who have adopted this method of compassing the defeat of the party nomines are doubtless actuated by upright and conscientious motives, and in the legislature and has been sent to a at two minutes past three o'clock this morning. Carson came to Decatur on struck three times with a policeman's cane in the sample room of D. W. Brenneman's wholesale liquer house, by Special Policeman Charles Johnson, late an employe at the coal shaft, who has taken John Tucker's place on the force. Carson was taken to the calaboose by Policeman Johnson and was placed in a cell as a "plain drunk." The officer found about $2 in cash upon his person, but no revolver or club. Carson was noisy while being searched, and when put behind the bars appeared to be able to stand alone. At 12 o'clock on Tuesday night Carson was taken suddenly ill, a fact which was fully tended up to the moment of his

THE INQUEST.

Coroner Dinneen was notified of the sudden and rather mysterious death of Carson, and he selected the following named gentlemen to learn, if possible, the facts in the case: Jacob Willis, fore man; John G. Shea, Martin Forstmyer, David L. Hughes, W. P. Hunter and A. L. Vowell.

THE TESTIMONY. The jury assembled in the presence of the dead in the upper north room of the calaboose, when the following sworn statements were made:

B. F. Sibley, the attending physican testified: I saw Carson first at 9 a. m. 9th. Found blm insensible. He had had an attack of apoplexy. Called upon him repeatedly. He gradually grew worse .--Do not think that attack of apoplexy was the result of recent violence. Could not discover any signs that he had been re cently struck.

Charles Myers testified: Was in Brenneman's saloon at the time of the difficulty. Johnson came in and got a glass of beer. Carson called for another drink, and talked to the barkeeper. Johnson told Carson to be still. Carson said he would keep quiet when he got ready Johnson took hold of Carson and said "Come with me." Carson pulled away. Johnson again caught Carson, and struck him with his club above the left ear -Deceased made no disturbance while the policeman was in the bar-room. After Carson had been struck by the police man, he threw up his hands and quivered. The policement again drew lock and struck Carson upon the back of his head. when he fell to the floor. I passed in, took off my coat, and got ready to begin work. The first ones I waited on were D. W. Brenneman and David Batchelder, While Atmory, which had been brilliantly lightthey were drinking, Carson came into the saloon, threw down fifty cents and wise made bright and attractive. said he didn't want to drink himself but wanted to pay for their drinks. Batchelder had placed 50 cents upon the counter at the time. Gave Batchelder 25 ets. change and Carson got mad because I didn't take pay for the drinks out of his half dollar. He swore at me, but I turned from him. Carson quarrelled with a companion soon after this lucident and threatened to shoot him several times, and while the two men quarreled Charles Marcott, the book keeper, led the other man out through the wholessle room. Carson, thus eft alone, asked for a drink, but I refused. He swore at me and threatened right hand back toward his hip pocket. Just then Policeman Johnson, dressed in citizen's clothes but wearing a star, came in. The policeman called for a glass of beer, and while he was drinking, Carson, still very boisterous, stood close by him. The policeman told Carson to be quiet and not make so much noise. Thereupon Carson made a grab at the policeman; wanted to know who he was, and threatened to shoot his head off: Hathaway told Carson that Johnson was an officer. Johnson then had hold of Carson with his left hand and held a stick in his right hand. Carson jerked away, but Johnson caught him again Carson repeated his threats to shoot and then Johnson struck Carson three times over the head-the first and

CANE PRESENTATION.

A pleasant surprise was in store for Mr. Hardy, who by careful management was kept in total ignorance of the caning he received. The "Cicilian Circle" was 24 called at 11 o'clock, and while the merry couples were in position waiting for the music, by request all faced to the center, when W. C. Johns, Esq., accompanied by City Register Hardy, emerged from the gests' reception room and proceeded within the human circle to the west end of the hall. They were soon followed by Deputy Marshal Hewes and Alderman Hardy, and while all eyes were turned upon the quarter, Mr. Johns, in a short and felicitous speech, presented the host second times near the top of the head of the evening with a magnificent goldover the left ear, the last time on the left | headed chony care, which was gratefully side, when he sank to the floor groaning accepted with appropriate remarks by as he fell. A Georgia Snake Story Atlanta Constitution

A Georgia man was fishing near rock under which was a snake's den the other day, when the reptile came gluding up from a foraging expedition, and was disappearing in the hole under the rock, when, with a dexterous movement, the man seized him by the tail and threw him twenty feet away. The snake hardly knew what had happened and again essayed to enter his domicile in the same manner. Again he was treated in the same manner. Never despairing, for a third time the wily serpent approached the rock. This time he came deliberately, as if contemplating the situation. Arriving at the mouth of the hole he deliberately coiled himself up and put out his long tongue, as it to take in the full situation. For a while he maintaired this defensive position, when he carefully began to uncoil, at the same time disappearing tail foremost into the den, to the admiration of the man who had
